Dear Professor Gerbner:

My apologies for taking so long to respond to your very welcome request to look at research papers related to my dissertation. I enclose copies of two articles that typify my research in that area. The dissertation data itself examines Time from 1940-49, comparing coverage of Russia and Germany as they switched roles in terms of US foreign policy.

I have had no time to pursue any of the CEM-related ideas I had expressed in my e-mail to you earlier this semester. I am now preparing a course on "War and the Media"--a much discussed topic but with no text that does justice to it. I am, therefore, spending an enormous amount of time finding readings. On the other hand, I'm learning so much.

Sincerely yours,

Shirley Smallman

Dear Shirley:

Ran across some old hard-copy correspondance (12/10/97) that I believe I have never answered. See attached. How is your class on "War and Media?" Apropose that, I am teaching a class on Media, Democracy, and Violence. Let me know if you are interested in CEM and Digital conferences. George.

Dear Shirley,

>>> Dear Professor Gerbner:

>>> Thanks for your reply. And, yes, I do know Michael Morgan. He was >>> on my dissertation committee along with Jane Blankenship and a member >>> of the journalism faculty. I should call Michael about speakers.

>>> I will be sending you copies of two SCA papers based on my >>> dissertation. >>> And, no, I have not published anything from it. I thank you for your >>> interest.

>>> Does the CEM have a website? And is anyone in your organization in >>> charge of disseminating information about the digital give away on the Web? >>> If I had the time over semester break (I'm preparing my new course on War >>> and the Media.), I'd focus on that task myself.

>>> Have a Happy Thanksgiving.
