

CultureWatch

A MONTHLY BIBLIOGRAPHY ON CULTURE, ART, AND POLITICAL AFFAIRS

May 1996

George Gerbner
Annenberg School, U-Penn
Univ. City/Science Ctr./1 East
3624 Market St.
Philadelphia, PA 19104

Dear George,

I am happy to inform you that, as an individual and/or organization working on the front lines of the struggle for democracy, you and your organization have been chosen to participate in a new pilot project -- CultureWatch's Democratic Values Research & Response Team (DVRRT).

CultureWatch (see enclosed copy), our monthly newsletter published by the DataCenter, has been tracking the religious right for the past three years. In the process, we have built an extensive database covering the right's political and social agenda (see enclosed "What They're Saying About CultureWatch").

For close to 20 years, the DataCenter's Information Services have been providing strategic information on right-wing activities to activists, researchers, investigative reporters, and organizations like yours.

Beginning May 1, 1996, CultureWatch, the complete collection of annotated articles, and a full-range of DataCenter's Information Services will be available to you free of charge, on a first come first served basis until funds, generously provided by the Nathan Cummings and Deer Creek Foundations, are depleted.

Upon confirmation of your participation, you will receive:

1. All ten issues of CultureWatch 1996.
2. The full text of each article annotated in each issue.
3. Up to three hours (or $300) of research and document delivery on right-wing organizations and individuals, funding sources and think tanks, issues and electoral campaigns (see enclosed information sheet of online databases).

To activate this offer, please call me at (800) 735-3741. As this offer is limited, you must call in order to ensure your participation -- even if you do not have a research request at this time.

We believe that his project will benefit all the parties involved. It provides you with vital intelligence; it puts CultureWatch and the DataCenter's Information Services to work with the important organizing and research projects; and it leverages the Nathan Cummings and Deer Creek Foundations' investment in uncovering and tracking anti-democratic forces in this country.

Sincerely,

Bill Berkowitz
Editor, CultureWatch