*“ ... to activate
the imagination
and the innate capacity
within all of us
to contribute
and make a difference.”*

We live in the most dynamic and creative era humankind has ever known. "Other times in history thought they were it; they were wrong. This is it!" says psychologist and philosopher Jean Houston. In the culminating years of the millennium, tremendous catalysts for cultural change have emerged that are changing how we perceive the world. These are coming from increasing environmental awareness, expanding technology, economic globalization, consciousness studies, spiritual wisdom, psychology, the rise of the feminine, science, increasing receptivity to diverse spiritual traditions, and heightened social activism.

In a profound sense all of these changes are related at their origin in that they are all a part of a deeper spiritual thrust—a quest for meaning, deeper understanding, the re-establishment of community, and greater social and environmental responsibility. New Dimensions programming makes this connection come alive.

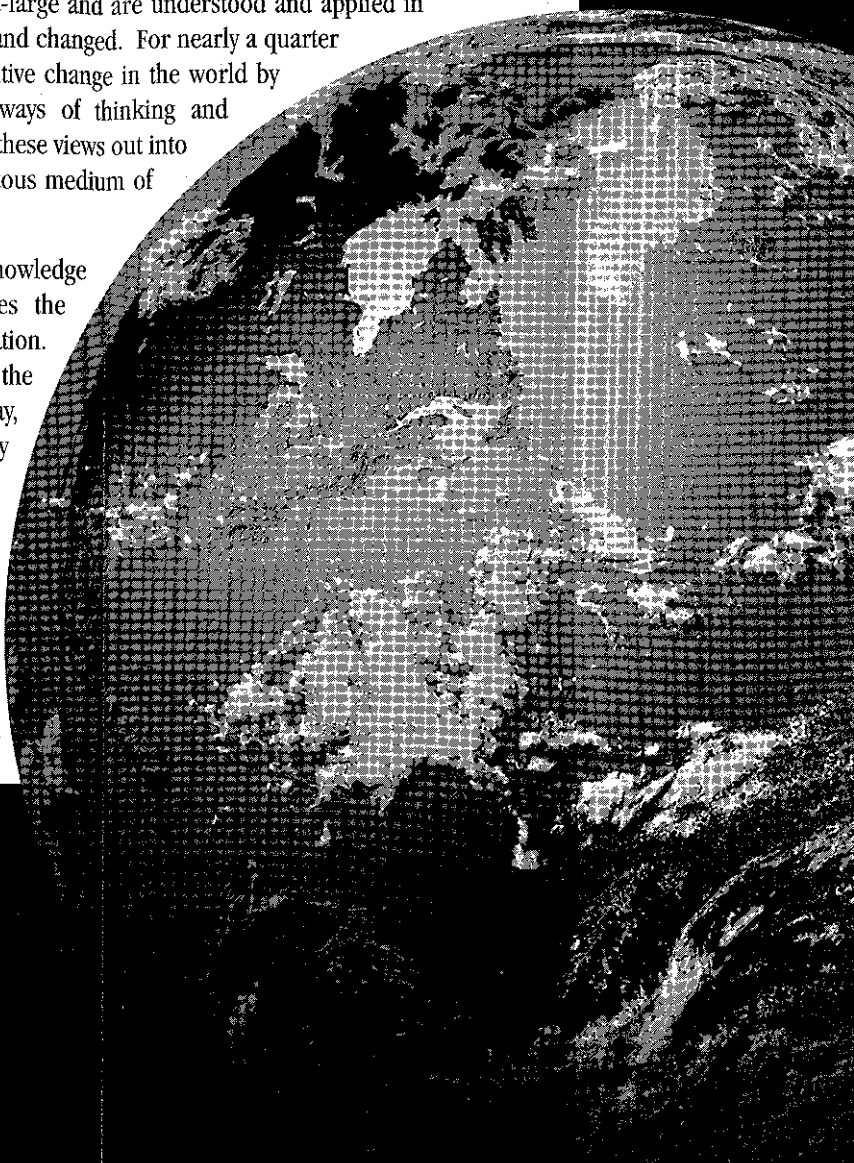

Change and new ideas percolate among small groups of people, in think tanks and in the halls of academia. But it is not until these new ideas seep into the culture at-large and are understood and applied in people's lives that the culture will be significantly affected and changed. For nearly a quarter of a century New Dimensions has been a catalyst for positive change in the world by dialoguing with people on the leading edge of new ways of thinking and perspectives on our universe. New Dimensions broadcasts these views out into the culture and the world via the democratic and ubiquitous medium of radio, reaching millions of listeners each week.

Audio is the perfect medium to deliver information, knowledge and new ideas. Audio is personal, intimate, energizes the imagination, and requires active attention and participation. New Dimensions brings the listener alongside some of the most influential and innovative people on the planet today, allowing the listener's own thoughts and imagination to play off those of the guests on the programs.

"This is what New Dimensions is about," says co-founder Michael Toms, "to provide free and open dialogue, with the listener an active part of the process. The purpose is not to fill empty minds like pouring water from a pitcher into a cup, but rather to activate the imagination and the innate capacity within all of us to contribute and make a difference."

"New Dimensions explores quietly and intimately what humanity and the universe are all about."

“‘New Dimensions’ is the voice of the ancestors in this postmodern world.”

—Malidoma Patrice Somé

“In this day of fortune cookie philosophies and bumper sticker politics it is refreshing to find a sanctuary for sustained conversation where two people truly communicate, with a large audience leaning across the electronic sofa eavesdropping. ‘New Dimensions’ is a safe haven for that kind of sharing.”

—Bill Moyers
broadcast journalist

“In a world largely forgetful of humane approaches to the body, soul and spirit, ‘New Dimensions’ is a rare, precious gift. It offers pleasures and entertainment that reach deep, and it gives me hope—no small thing in a time of decadence and transition.”
