MSG Passes Undergraduate Advisor Plan

by Samuel Bobrow

The Men's Student Government last night approved a motion to establish a counseling program for freshmen, conducted by junior and senior undergraduates. The pilot program, passed by a unanimous vote, would comprise choosing ten upperclassmen to act as non-administrative assistants to ten dorm counselors. The upperclassmen would assist freshmen during orientation week and provide help, when needed, throughout the semester. The resolution, introduced by Paul Ratschof, contended that freshmen need a "friend, who is a source of accurate information and reliable advice." The present system of graduate dorm counselors does not fulfill this need partly because, according to the bill, "the role of the counselor is conceived as more of a professional than a personal relationship with freshmen."

In other business at the meeting, President Steve Arons, announced that the co-ed government, approved by men, "is acceptable" to WSGA leaders with certain clarifying bylaws. These by-laws are being considered and written, said Arons.

He continued that the constitution would already have been approved if Paula Gomborg's election had stood. Mary Gabrielle, "because she was elected President or something, suddenly became interested in the co-ed government," added Arons.

The Assembly also approved a motion to change the composition of the steering committee of the All-University Lecture series from three men and one woman to two men and two women. Arons noted that it seemed petty, but Miss Gabrielle was being "female conscious."

Dean's Standardize Honor Requirements

by Herbert S. Herrman

Qualifications for Dean's List have been standardized in the various colleges of the University recently.

All students in the top 15% of their classes will be eligible for their school's Dean's List, provided that their averages are 3.00 or above.

Graduation honors will also be standardized in the coming year; students with cumulative averages of 3.3 or better will graduate cum laude; 3.6 or better magna cum laude; 3.8 or better Summa Cum Laude. The college has added the award of distinction at graduation for honor students who have satisfied the requirements of the Honors Program in their major subject.

In Wharton the new standard will serve to increase the number of recipients. In the past years Wharton honored with Dean's List 10% of all enrolled students. This put the cutoff point at 3.125, or 160 students.

This system of placing the student body on Dean's List as a whole rather than by class, tended

ANTI-CHESTON Women Favor WRH

A majority of women interviewed yesterday favored dorm-living over the newly proposed "housekeeping suite" system.

The Cheston and Harrison Apartment buildings, located on the 3800 block of Chestnut Street, have been leased by the University to house approximately 200 women students, starting this fall, until the new Women's Residence Halls are ready for occupancy in 1967.

The "interim housing" offers facilities which will vary significantly from current residential facilities.

Private Phones In Cheston

Women who live in the Cheston and Harrison will reside in units, housing from two to seven students. Each unit will have a kitchen, bathroom, and a definite dining area. There will be no food contract. Private telephones will be available for students who wish them, but there will be no inter-dorm telephone system.

In the Women's Residence Hall, students live in suites of separate rooms, with an activity room for each suite. An inter-dorm telephone system reaches each suite and there are public telephones on each floor. Students living in the WRH must sign a mandatory food contract.

Reactions to "interim housing" were mixed. More students, however, seemed to favor the Women's Residence Hall over "interim housing."

Students who expressed an unfavorable opinion of "interim housing" often condemned the proposed housing as being "too inconvenient." They believed the location of the buildings, the lack of laundry facilities and of an inter-dorm telephone system to be distinct disadvantages. Other students felt that cooking their own food would be "too time-consuming," and that it might be more expensive in the long run.

Students who expressed favorable reactions to the "interim housing" often cited as a distinct advantage the opportunity to cook their own meals. Said one student, "I like the idea of knowing I can eat what and when I want." Said another, "This way I won't have to eat the stuff they serve at the dorms."

4 Students Claim Cases Dismissed By Dean Clappier

Four of the 14 students who are scheduled to appear before the Student Judiciary today claimed their cases were dismissed by Assistant Dean of Men Clappier.

It was also learned from two sources who were intimately associated with the drafting of the University Operations Manual that the committee procedure outlined was what should or would be done by a given committee.

The claims of dismissal came from four students who were to appear before the University Committee on Discipline last Thursday. Instead they were called into Clappier's office along with five others and allegedly told their cases were dismissed.

The students also claim Clappier told them nothing would appear on their permanent records but that there was a possibility of a letter home or a week of informal conduct probation. The students claim they had been sure their cases were dismissed until they received letters from the Student Judiciary yesterday morning asking them to appear at a hearing this afternoon at 4.

Dr. Gerbner To Assume Post As Annenberg Dean

Dr. George Gerbner, associate professor at the Institute of Communications Research, University of Illinois, has been named the new dean of the Annenberg School of Communications, president Harnwell announced Friday.

Dr. Gerbner is a noted advisor to various communications commissions as well as the author of numerous articles on the mass media. Before going to the University of Illinois in 1956, the newly appointed dean of Annenberg taught at the University of Southern California.

Born in Hungary in 1919, Dr. Gerbner came to the United States in 1939 where he became an American citizen. He received his Bachelor of Arts degree in journalism at the University of California at Berkeley in 1942 and a Master of Arts degree and a Doctorate in communication and education at the University of Southern California.

Dr. Gerbner has been a reporter and feature writer for the San Francisco Chronicle, as well as an editor and newscaster for the United States Information Service.

Under a grant from the National Institute of Mental Health, Dr. Gerbner directed research into the portrayal of mental illness in the mass media, a study done in conjunction with a larger project on popular conceptions of mental illness.

Most recently he was in charge,

DEAN LONGLEY
Denies Dismissal

When questioned about this alleged mistake, Dean of Men Robert Longley stated it had been a misunderstanding on the part of the students. "They were dismissed for the time being and told they would be hearing from us (the committee)."

Longley also stated that any student who objected to a hearing before the judiciary could, if he

Jacob Opens I-Week With Houston Hall Lecture

by Jonathan Greene

Dr. Philip E. Jacob, professor of political science, will lecture on "Cross-Cultural Communications on Campus," at 11 A.M. in Houston Hall Auditorium.

The program is the first part of the University's observance of International Week.

Dr. Jacob is the co-director of the Ford Foundation's research project on public affairs. He participated in the University Survey Mission to Iran in 1960 at the invitation of the Iranian Government and the International Cooperation Administration, and he was a member of the Board of Directors of the American Friends Service Committee from 1950 to 1955. Currently, he is serving as the Chairman on the Washington Seminars Committee.

DR. PHILIP E. JACOB
To open International Week

Born in Istanbul, Turkey, in 1914, Dr. Jacob received his Bachelor of Arts from Yale University in 1935. He received his Masters from the University of Pennsylvania in 1939, and was awarded his Doctorate in 1941 from Princeton.

Noted Author

Dr. Jacob has written several books and magazine articles concerning international relations and sociological problems. Among his works is "Changing Values in College," which explores the impact of general education in the social sciences on student values. Currently being printed in a book entitled

Former UN Representative To Discuss African Racism

Dr. Allard K. Lowenstein, the former Representative of the South West African Tribes at the United Nations, will speak this Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m. in the Annenberg Auditorium as the guest of the Men's Student Government.

He will speak on "Racial Policies and Problems in South Africa." According to Larry Brenton of MSG. This program is intended to be part of a national protest movement against South Africa's racial separation policy known as Apartheid.

Plans for this protest include a conference in Washington and a demonstration in front of the White House this weekend.

Washington Conference

The Washington conference is co-ordinated by a student movement as "African Freedom Day Action Against Apartheid." It will feature Oliver Tambo, deputy president general of the African Nationalist Congress; George House, executive director of the American Committee on Africa; and Alex Quaison-Sackey, Ghanaian ambassador to the United Nations.

The purpose of the conference is to inform participants of the present state of affairs in South Africa and to suggest possible solutions to the problem of Apartheid.

Calls For Embargo

According to Brenton, the demonstration at the White House will call upon the United States Government to place an embargo on American trade with South Africa; to discourage private American investment and loans to South Africa; and to urge the NATO Alliance to join with the United States in boycotting arms shipments to South Africa.

One thousand persons are expected to participate in the demonstration. This is considerably larger than any foreign policy protests held at the White House previously.

"The Dynamics of International Organization." It is a functional appraisal of integrative process in the international community.

Following Dr. Jacob's lecture, the Ishangi African Dance Troup will perform several dances designed to illustrate the influence of African music on the music of other lands.

The Ishangi Troup was cited in 1961 as the finest African Dance Troup on the East coast. They have performed in many international affairs in the Philadelphia area, including a performance at the International House of Philadelphia.

Shriver Gets Yale Support

A group has been formed at Yale University to support Peace Corps Director R. Sargent Shriver, Jr., for the Democratic nomination for Vice-President.

"This is the beginning of what we expect will soon be a national movement," Chairman Eugene H. Zagat, Jr., a Yale Law School student, said recently.

"Only Stevenson and President Kennedy have aroused so much enthusiasm on the campus," Zagat said. "We support Shriver because of his imaginative and liberal approach to American problems."

The group is contacting campus leaders at colleges all over the country, according to Zagat, "to organize the vast support for Shriver that already exists on nearly every American campus."

Shriver has been prominently mentioned recently as President Johnson's likely choice for the Vice-Presidency. Not long ago the President told a group of reporters that Shriver is "the most able, the most brilliant, the most dedicated public servant in Washington. He is my real confident."

"We are not trying to draft Sargent Shriver for the nomination. We don't want to push anyone on President Johnson," Zagat said. "President Johnson should have the widest possible latitude in choosing the man who will be his running mate and the next Vice-President of the United States."

"However, we want to show the President, who is already favorable disposed to Shriver, that there is wide support for Shriver among American college students and on the part of the general public."

Shriver is an urban liberal who would be a valuable asset to the Democratic ticket, the group believes.

"The two major issues of the campaign and of the next Johnson administration will almost certainly be foreign policy and the problem of poverty, unemployment and discrimination. In both of these areas Shriver speaks from experience and deep conviction," Zagat said.

"Shriver has a personal acquaintance with the leaders of the underdeveloped nations of the world that no other American can claim. His new role as director of the war on poverty will give him a chance to grapple with perhaps the most important domestic issue of our time, an issue with which he is passionately concerned."

The two sources who explained the origin of the operations manuals said it was drawn up by a committee of the Faculty Senate and adopted by the administration after consultation with the senate and Trustees.

They explained that the particular procedure was made up after consultation with the Dean of Men's Office. Its purpose was to establish a workable procedure which would be followed by the committee. Although the manual was originally written about seven or eight years ago, and has since undergone many changes, the latest revision, made last May, preserves the guarantees of student rights exactly as in the original.

of an investigation into the portrayal of teachers and schools in the mass media of the U.S., Great Britain, France, Russia, and three countries in Eastern Europe.

Next year Dr. Gerbner will direct, under a National Science Foundation grant, "A Comparative Study of Films and the 'Film Hero,'" an analysis of the fictional personalities of leading characters in American, Italian, Indian, Yugoslavian, and Polish films. The study is being made in cooperation with UNESCO and the International Sociological Association.

Dr. Gerbner has conducted and participated in communications seminars under the sponsorship of the National Education Association, the Agency for International Development, National Project in Agricultural Communications, and the U.S. Office of Education, and has been a member of many research advisory committees on communications.

Dr. Gerbner will assume his post July 1st. Since last summer, when the school's first director, Gilbert Seldes, retired, Dr. Robert E. Spiller, Professor of English Literature at Pennsylvania, has been acting dean of the school.
