

MASSACHUSETTS INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY

20D-219

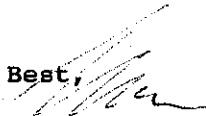

Department of Linguistics and Philosophy
Cambridge, Massachusetts 02139

June 8, 1992

Dear Mike,

Many thanks for sending the Sexton book, which is not bad -- I've got a copy, so gave this one to an editor from the Globe for his edification (a nice guy). I know of a few other books on the topic: Jeremy Brecher, Strike! (Straight Arrow -- a division of Rolling Stone); Daniel Fusfeld, The Rise and Repression of Radical Labor, a pamphlet published by Charles Kerr, an anarchist press in Chicago; David Milton, Politics of US Labor (mostly on the 30s). There's also plenty of stuff on narrower topics (Haymarket, Wilson's repression, etc.). There's some material on it in Howard Zinn's People's History. He'd probably have a lot more to suggest. As you may know, he was a blue-collar worker before going into (very dissident) academic life. Wonderful guy, too. You might drop him a note.

Best,

Noam Chomsky

Howard Zinn
29 Fern
Auburndale, MA 02166